Continuous Hard Fighting for Over a Week-Japanese Battering the Last Line of Defences-Troops in the Sing Patriotic Songs

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN. LONDON, Sept. 28.-A despatch to the Standard from Liaoyang, Sept. 26, via Tientsin states that the crisis at Port Arthur is rapidly approaching The speedy capture of the last line of defence is anticipated. The recent successful assault by the Japanese sealed the fate of the fortress, enabling the besiegers to mount heavy guns on the hills to the eastward, which command a section of the town and harbor.

The Russian fire for many days has not been as vigorous as usual, and it is believed that the ammunition is scarce. The correspondent confirms the reports of severe bombardments, the severe losses of the garrison and the cutting off of the main aqueduct supplying the fortress with water A despatch to the Chronicle, vaguely dated "Liaotung Peninsula, Sept. 26," reports that the bombardment of Port Arthur goes on unceasingly. The fortress is surrounded by a ring of fire from the Japanese shells. The last line of defences is being battered to pieces preparatory to a final assault. At one point the Japanese have sapped to within a few hundred yards of the Russians. It will be difficult to cross the intervening space owing to the intensity of the defenders' rifle fire.

The correspondent mentions that the Russians made a sortie, but were driven back into the fortress. They lost some

Both sides are displaying unparalleled fortitude and determination. The bands at Port Arthur play anthems nightly, and the defenders in the advanced works sing The Japanese respond with cries of "Banzai" and the singing of patriotic songs.

Russian Troops in Need of Winter Clothing -Japanese Advancing. Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN.

JAPAN'S POSITION STRONG. Need Not Continue on the Offensive—Ready

for Winter Campaign. Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN

IONDON, Sept. 28.-Telegraphing under date of Sept. 21, the correspondent of the Standard at Liaoyang refers to the despatches from Europe representing the Japanese position as unfavorable. He says these statements are unwarranted. The Japanese are fully prepared to advance to Mukden and even, if necessary, to Harbin. Their confidence in themselves and their leaders is as it should be, wholly unshaken. The cold weather will not at present make it compulsory to suspend operations.

The correspondent questions whether it is indispensable for the Japanese to continue to take the offensive. He says the country they already hold is perfectly easy of defence against the Russians, who are not in the least likely to come down on the Japanese until they number three to one, but to muster that force they must be at least 500,000 strong, a greater number of troops than they can possibly feed. The Japanese would therefore seem to control the situation. A line of forts strongly held would enable them to open the country behind them at their leisure to make full use of its growing resources and to await the time when it would suit Gen. Kuropatkin to move against them with a force either insufficient in numbers er inadequately supplied. Under date of Sept. 23, the same correspondent says Mukden is reported to be entirely unfortified, while the defensive works at Tieling are far from strong enough to withstand assault.

The Japanese are fully prepared for a winter campaign. The losses they sustained in the fighting around Liaoyang have now been made good, and the army is quite ready to move. The Japanese outposts are half way to Mukden. The health of the troops is excellent.

In the opinion of the Japanese, Gen. Kuropatkin is more suited to a divisional command than to control an army. He may be a good administrator, but he is an indifferent commander-in-chief in the field. It was a compliment to Gen. Kuroki's army that Gen. Kuropatkin devoted the whole of his personal energies against it. A despatch to the Telegram from Sinminting says it is stated there that Gen. Kuropatkin, acting under orders from the Government, is preparing to make a stand at Mukden. He occupies the north bank of the Hun River. He has 264 guns. Reenforcements are hurrying to him from Harbin. The decision to accept battle at Mukden is probably political rather than

BLACK SEA FLEET UNDER WAY. Suspicion That Ships May Try to Slip Through the Dardanelles.

Special Cable Despatch to THE SUN. CONSTANTINOPLE. Sept. 28 .- The movements of the Russian Black Sea fleet are attracting attention. The vessels recently suddenly sailed at night from Sebastope and have not been sighted since. It is stated that the Sultan has ordered that a sharp watch be kept for them at the Turkish ports on the Black Sea. The season opened with a bang Monday afternoon in the region of Thirtyeighth street and Broadway and events followed one another quickly. At the Hamburg-American Line dock Chief Engineer Michel of the Deutschland and Assistant Engineer Christlieb both spoke very highly of the invention. It was said at the office of the North German Lloyd Line that the Kaiser Wilhelm II., which has made an hourly average of 23.58 knots between Plymouth and Sandy Hook, had been equipped in June with a patent propeller enabling her to capture the ocean record from the Deutschland. The Krongrinz Wilhelm and the Kaiser Wilhelm de Grosse of the North German Lloyd Line also will be fitted with the new propeller, which, as a representative of the line said last night, has worked "wonderfully well," increasing the speed of the flyer from 5 to 10 per cent. YOUNG VENEZUELAN SHOOTS HIMSELF AT THE ENDICOTT.

Von Bauditz Here to See World's Fair Became Infatuated With Miss Vivian de Limos-Scene in Restaurant Leads Up to Tragedy-Deliberate Farewells.

Detectives hunted high and low on the upper West Side yesterday for Vivian de Limos, the young woman through love for whom Carlos Fredriquis von Bauditz, a wealthy young Venezuelan, shot himself in his apartments in the Hotel Endicott on Monday night. The young woman called up the hotel on the telephone on Monday afternoon and asked for Von Bauditz. He was not in and she asked the boy at the switch board to tell him to call her up when he returned, at a certain telephone number in the Columbus station.

This telephone number is that of Mrs. Deane Birch, who lives at 124 West Sixtyfourth street. When questioned last night about Miss de Limos, Mrs. Birch said at first she knew nothing about her. Finally, however, she admitted that she and the woman were friends and that Miss de Limos had been living with her lately. She described her as "a pretty little bit of thing" and said that she was only 20 years old.

By my advice," said Mrs. Birch, "Miss de Limos went to the country this morning. Von Bauditz hadn't made it known to her that he was so deeply infatuated. It is true that Miss de Limos and I dined at Martin's on Sunday night, but we were in different parties. Von Lauditz went up to the table where Miss de Limos sat. There was a little scene, but no quarrel."

Mrs. Birch said that Miss de Limos was of French extraction, but declined to tell anything about her antecedents. "That would hardly be Masonic," she said. The young woman's name as given to the Coryoung woman's name as given to the Cor-oner is Vivian, although Von Bauditz al-ways addressed her as Violet, and she signed at least one of the notes she wrote to him as "Dimple." The trouble referred to in this last letter is said to have occurred in Jack's restaurant in Sixth avenue near Forty-third street. Miss De Limos, who was with Von Bauditz, walked over to another table and spoke to a man.

This angered the Venezuelan greatly and he upbraided Miss De Limos for her conduct. She turned it off by saying that the person she spoke to was a mere boy. When Von Bauditz walked into Martin's on Sunday night he found Miss De Limos there with the same "mere boy." So deep was his anger that his friends had great difficulty in getting him to leave without causing a disturbance.

Von Fauditz was about 28 years old. His father was of noble family in Denmark, who forty-five years ago was sent to Bolivar, Venezuela, as Danish Consul-General. He married a native of that country and two sons were born to him, the young man who committed suicide and his brother, who is now travelling in Switzerland. When he died some years ago he left his fortune to his sons.

Organization. The German branch of the Plasterers Society has revolted. At a meeting last night in Emrich's Hall, in East Forty-first street, the Germans organized themselves into a separate union under the auspices of the International Plasterers' Association. A committee was appointed to see the employing plasterers with a view to a settlement of the lockout and to see what modifications could be made in the present arbitration agreement. A meeting of the new union will be held on Saturday, at which the committee will report, and it will be then decided whether the Germans will return to work under the arbitration agreement or not Plasterers' Society is then expected to the revolt of the Germans, who number about 500, was caused by conditions which they say have discriminated against them for years in the union. The proceedings at the meetings are in English, which many of the Germans, who are the most skilled in the trade, do not understand. The result was that the English speaking element secured the best jobs for themse eaving the most undesirable work for the

CLASH OF STATE GENERALS.

Gen. Roe Invites Suggestions on a New Code and Gen. Henry Says Don't Send 'Em Major-Gen. Charles F. Roe, commanding the National Guard of this State, and Adjutant-General Neison H. Henry have got into a snarl over the revision of the military code, with the result that the probability of charges being preferred by Gen. Roe against Gen. Henry was being discussed yesterday in every armory in the

The trouble dates back to the appointment of a board of officers by Gen. Henry by the direction of the Governor as Commander-in-Chief for the preparation of the new code. Gen. Roe was put at the head of this board. A provisional code was unished a short time ago and Gen. Roe sent a copy to the commanding officer of each organization, asking him to send suggestions upon it before the code was submitted to the Governor through the Adjutant-General.

As soon as Gen. Henry heard of this action by Gen. Roe he sent an official munication to the officers directing pay no attention to the order of the Major-General. Gen. Henry's letter said Major-General. Gen. Henry's letter said:

In order that there shall be no misunderstanding with reference to the status of the provisional military code. I desire to inform you that this document was conceived, prepared and issued without the knowledge or advisement of this office. I would therefore request in view of the above facts that officers refrain from all expression of opinion regarding the same until the subject and document have received most thorough and careful consideration.

Gen. Henry was out of town yesterday.
Gen. Roe declined to discuss his subordinate's letter, which some officers in the Guard were calling "disrespect to a superior officer in an aggravated form."

Suits for Men

Ready-for-Service.

Not by rule and rote-not by time honored methods. but by an absolutely perfect system are the Saks garments tailored. Instead of designing a pattern to fit an idealized, inanimate figure, we cut the garment to fit a living, work-a-day man. Sometimes six or seven coats are cut before one is accepted as a model. From the perfect garment a pattern is cut which serves for future effort. We have ready-for-service a series of new single and double breasted sack models as well as the English walking and Chesterfield cutaway suits in the new browns and grays, as well as black, blue and an exhaustive variety of plaids, stripes and mixtures.

MINISTER STRICKEN. Rev. Mr. Campbell Overcome in Midst of

Heated Discussion. The Rev. Frederick Campbell, stated clerk of the Brooklyn Presbytery, while taking part in a heated discussion as to his method of handling the business of the Presbytery, at the regular monthly meeting in the Central Church, Marcy and Jefferson avenues, Brooklyn, on Monday afternoon, was stricken with heart trouble and acute indigestion and had to be removed from the church. He was attended by Dr. Chase, a lay member of the Presbytery, and taken to his home. The cause of the discussion was a complaint sent to the synod, which is to meet at Middletown, N. Y., on Oct. 18. It was contended that the stated clerk should have notified the Presbytery before sending complaint. The complaint itself was also under discussion, and a committee, consisting of the Rev. N. W. Wells, Dr. L. M. Clarke and W. J. Hutchins, was appointed to go before he exped and attend to the com-The complaint deals with alleged irregularities in the ordination of two young men who are anxious to sail to their posts as foreign missionaries. The discussion became very warm and Dr. Campbell was attacked to the contract of the contra laboring under considerable excitement when he suddenly collapsed and was taken from the meeting in a fainting condition. It was finally decided that no irregularities had been committed and the meeting came to an end after sympathy for Dr. Campbell had been expressed.
